

To Whom It May Concern:

I had the pleasure of working with Valerie Jupe during 2005 on a nationally syndicated daily television show. She started as our post department's Digitizer and was soon promoted into the Assistant Editor's position.

I enjoyed working with Valerie for a variety of reasons. I found her to be intelligent, hard working, and very aware of the post department's "big picture," as well as knowing her own direct responsibilities.

She is a good note-taker and a fast learner. Valerie also possesses the inherent desire to do a mistake-free job when it comes to the task at hand.

As the Associate Director and On-Line Supervisor for the show, I relied heavily on Valerie to prepare elements for roll-in material for the taping of the show(s), as well as being the technical link between the Off-Line and On-Line steps of the editing process. In a very short period of time, she did a good job of preparing shows for On-Line, often under little or no direct supervision, as she usually worked a night shift, opposite the schedule of the rest of the department. I feel that her self-motivation and problem-solving skills played a big part in her ability to be an important and vital link for the show.

I would highly recommend Valerie for any post job that a potential employer feels she is qualified for. And if she's not quite qualified for it, I'm sure she would master it in a short amount of time.

Sincerely,

Mark Gutierrez
